NOT A QUESTION OF POLITICS.

We regret to notice that some of our democratic contemporaries are treating the Homestead incident in a partisan fashion, for which there is no excuse. They assume that Mr. Andrew Carnegie and his associates at Homestead have been engaged in an industry protected by the tariff, and because a dispute as to wages has arisen between the employers and employed, protection is responsible for the Homestead murders and mischiefs. In congress, too, certain persons who suppose themselves to be democrats have insisted upon this view.

It strikes were never heard of in unprotected industries, if, in fact, the greatest strikes in the country had not occurred in unprotected industries like the steam railroads and horse railroads, if free-trade England was not a country of strikes, and if all these facts were not known to everybody with education enough to read large print, these assumptions might be worth contradicting. As the case is, they are so far-fetched and wildly absurd that we fear they will bring discredit upon the democrats in the national campaign.

This is not a question of partisan politics; it is deeper than that, for it goes to the very heart of social order and the preservation of all that has been won for civilization. The democratic politicians and newspapers that are trying to obscure the real question are doing all in their power to injure the democratic party.

PRESIDENTIAL CANDIDATES.

The New York Advertiser furnishes the following biographical sketch of the four presidential candidates:

HARRISON.

It can be said of President Harrison that he wears a hat larger than Cleveland (7 1/2) and a collar half a size smaller (16 1/2). A No. 6 shoe fits his foot, while Cleveland finds a 5 1/2 ample, despite his extra weight. Mr. Harrison's right pedal extremity measures 9 1/2 inches. Like the third Napoleon, his legs are short and his body long. Before it grew gray his hair and whiskers were dark brown. His eyes are of the same color and there is a suggestion of a squint about them, due possibly to weakness caused by intense application. He dresses plainly, never pays over $50 for a suit of clothes, and always has his trousers of a different color from the coat and vest. He likes black neckties and good cigars—both small and first class. He is the son of a farmer, belongs to the Presbyterian church, was graduated from college and has been a lawyer, soldier and politician. He is of medium height, and Indiana claims him as a favorite son, but he was born at his distinguished grandfather's home, North Bend, Ohio, August 30, 1833. He has voted the republican ticket every since the days of Fremont and Dayton. It should be added that he never wears but one style of color—a turndown, made by an old Indianapolis friend—and that he has a pigeon-toed tendency.

CLEVELAND.

Grover Cleveland is the son of a minister and a native of New Jersey, having been born in Caldwell, March 18, 1837. Like Harrison he does not despise a good cigar and is not averse to a glass of wine. He wears a 7 1/2 derby hat and a No. 17 standing collar. His face is adorned with a mustache, and his hair is thin and brown, now turning gray. He is a great lover of fruit, eggs and buckwheat cakes, and the chief thing that arouses his wrath is the frequent renewed attempts to make Mrs. Cleveland and Baby Ruth prominent factors in the political campaign. He had a fair education, clerked in a village store, went to Buffalo, published a book on short-horned cattle, studied law, was selected assistant district attorney, and after that his career is a familiar one to the American people. He has made and saved money, and his wife is also said to be worth $500,000 in her own right. Mr. Cleveland has always been a democrat and an attendant of the Presbyterian church.

WEAVER.

James Baird Weaver, the people's party candidate, doesn't smoke, drink or swear. On one occasion, while a soldier, he did curse, but after the battle was over he publicly apologized to the regiment for his profanity. Five times he has been a congressional nominee and this is his second race for the presidency. He has been what opponents call an "agitator" for fifteen years. He wears a turndown collar and white necktie, and prefers a frock coat, close-cut vest and increased trousers to any other style of outward adornment. He is the son of a farmer and was born in Ohio, June 13, 1833. After "doing the chores" he studied law evenings, but when twenty years old he went to California. Even then he was a greenbacker for he refused to hunt for gold, and going to Iowa he secured admission to the bar. He was a soldier during the war, a lawyer and republican politician until 1877, and after that a free lance. As an advocate of paper money and various reforms he has spoken in every state of the union. He has been in congress, has written books, done newspaper editorial work, is a devout Methodist and has a wife and six children, besides several grandchildren. One of his sons-in-law is an editor and a Cleveland boomer, but, outside of politics, thinks "Papa Jim" is as "good as they make 'em."

BIDWELL.

Like Harrison, General John Bidwell, the prohibition candidate, glories in full whiskers. He wears a No. 15 1/2 standing collar, is quite gray, has neutral blue eyes and is a native of New York, where he was born August 5, 1819. When in congress a quarter of a century ago he was a wine grower and an advocate of wine-making, but he has changed all that since, and now not a grape dare sprout on his magnificent California ranch. He has taught school, was a Pacific-coast pioneer and served in the Mexican war and the California militia during the civil struggle. He has been a miner and farmer, has affiliated with republicans and democrats, has been a member of the state and national legislatures and now, although more than three score and ten, doesn't look more than fifty years of age. His neighbors like him, and in every respect he is a vigorous old man.

We admire a frank, clear-cut democratic newspaper, and the harder it hits the better it suits us; but a hybrid newspaper, an "Egyptian mummy," a man or newspaper that has not grit nor grace enough to be a partisan, has not bravery nor honesty (political) enough to be a patriot. You never know such a newspaper; you can never trust it. As an educator it is not reliable; it is just as liable to teach that the earth is flat as a pancake, as to teach its rotundity.

CONGRESS is acting childish in regard to the world's fair appropriation. This enterprise was inaugurated by the government, and it should be sustained and made a success. No doubt money has been badly used, and will continue to be, but the necessary means to make the fair a success should be supplied freely.

The election for state officers occurred in Alabama Monday. The contest was between the democrats with the republicans and people's party combined, the latter naming the ticket. But the usual democratic majority prevailed, showing that the South still remains solidly for that party. Governor Jones, democrat, is elected by from 40,000 to 50,000 majority.

The following has been compiled from the official census reports and is being run by some of our exchanges at the head of their editorial columns in place of the presidential ticket. It takes up less space and expresses the state of the political barometer quite as well as would the names and pictures of the candidates:

Little drops of whiskey,
Little jags of gin,
Will make a man a democrat
If persisted in.

CLATSKANIE.

Mr. Borthwick has brought the Barr traction engine into use in getting piling to tidewater on the Adam Barr place.

Lumber hauling is being done now from the new Himpel mill, which is in active operation.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Tichenor are spending the week in Portland.

A special school meeting of the citizens of this school district held last week, a tax was voted to be applied towards finishing the new school building.

County Superintendent T. J. Cleaton is busy this week in arranging for and presiding over the institute. He has an able lieutenant and valued assistant in W. H. Powell. The citizens take quite an interest in the evening sessions.

TEACHERS' INSTITUTE.

The first teachers' institute held by the new county superintendent commenced in Conyers' hall, Clatskanie, on Monday evening, August 1st. Some twenty-five teachers and applicants for certificates were present at the opening session. Upon calling the meeting to order a selection of instrumental music was given by the orchestra of four pieces consisting of organ, cornet, violin and guitar by Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Blackford and Messrs. Fabrique and Shourd. These orchestral selections were frequently rendered during the different evenings, and were greatly enjoyed. After an invocation by Rev. Brown a very neat address of welcome was given by E. W. Conyers, which was responded to in a few words by the county superintendent. After music Miss Maud Bryant recited "The Wreck of the Hesperus." This was followed by the reading of a paper by Rev. F. J. Brown on "The benefits of institutes," which was a thoughtful and carefully prepared production. County Supt. Cleaton then addressed the teachers on making the best of present opportunities for improvement, and plead for earnestness in their work.

Tuesday morning.—A little time was spent in vocal music, after which W. H. Powell gave an illustrative talk on arithmetic, followed by Mrs. Keasey on primary reading and spelling. The discussion of these topics occupied the forenoon.

Tuesday afternoon.—Prof. Hodge led the class on grammar, occupying the first hour. Prof. W. A. Wood occupied a part of the next hour on study of history which was followed by questions and a discussion of the subject. Prof. R. S. Hatton followed with physiology as a topic, and seemed to have prepared himself to go into a very general investigation of the subject, illustrating it by some object lesson in the shape of a bone of meat and some chemical experiments. Upon request of Mrs. W. H. Conyers, local president, Rev. F. J. Brown presented the matter of suitable representation at the world's fair urging those present to interest themselves in the matter.

Tuesday evening.—The hall was crowded to hear the evening exercises. After vocal music and an orchestral selection, Miss Maud Henderson read an interesting paper on "Why I like teaching," followed with a recitation by Miss Jennie Myers. In the absence of A. B. Gordon, his topic, "Slighted duties to-day—failures tomorrow," was discussed by Rev. Brown, Dr. Hall, and W. H. Powell. Following this came a recitation by Miss Mildred Boyle that was highly appreciated. The topic, "Proper incentives to study" was not discussed in the absence of Mr. Elrey, who was to read a paper on the subject. Another very excellent recitation by Mrs. E. C. Blackford, followed by music, closed the evening session.

Mr. J. E. Thoroughgood, writing from Georgetown, Del., says: "Two teaspoonfuls of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy saved the life of Mrs. Jane Thomas, of this place." He also states that several other very bad cases of bowel complaint there have been cured by this remedy. For sale by Edwin Ross, druggist.

DEER ISLAND.

Edwin Merrill has a fine field of wheat ready for the reaper.

Lyman Merrill is harvesting his grain this week.

W. D. Connell commenced haying last week, but on Friday he was summoned to Hillsboro to attend the funeral of a cousin.

Hon. Norman Merrill, of Clatskanie, visited here last Sunday. He addressed the Canaan Republican Club and is credited with an excellent speech, in which he presented a powerful argument in favor of protection for home industry, which was listened to by an attentive audience.

C. L. Smith is having a neat residence built on his place, in fact one of the finest in this neighborhood. Mr. Cook, of Portland, is doing the work and proves himself to be a first-class mechanic.

E. M. Wharton has the foundation for his new house laid, and is busy himself with the building, which will add another grand improvement to this neighborhood.

Muckle Bros. new house is nearing completion and is getting a coat of paint. It is large and commodious.

J. M. Spargeon met with a painful accident last Tuesday by a blow on the eye from a limb.

The ladies of Canaan held a box social one week ago last Wednesday evening for the benefit of the school. The directors bought a set of apparatus and the ladies proposed to swell the funds, which they did in an excellent manner. A box so desirable is not altogether a desirable entertainment, especially when you do not know who is bidding your luck, although is an enjoyable one, as was the case when the fellow thought he was bidding on a young lady's box, which proved to be a married woman's. Entire harmony prevailed during the evening at the hall, though some loud words were used outside, which should not have been the case. The entertainment proved a beneficial one, netting about $10.

Canaan Republican Club.

July 31, 1892.

The club met at the usual hour (2 o'clock p. m.), the house being handsomely decorated by the ladies with flowers and evergreens, while the speaker's stand was ornamented with one of the choicest bouquets of the season. The house was so crowded that the wagons had to be resorted to for seats and chairs to accommodate the audience. After the house was called to order, all business was suspended, and the crowd listened to a lengthy and able address on the tariff question by Hon. Norman Merrill, representative-elect, of this county.

Yours Respectfully,
Jno. M. Spargeon, Secretary.
